

Powering Up Your Canvas Course, Part 4

Beginner

1

Use Modules

Modules create a linear flow of what students should do in your course. You can organize content by units, grading periods, or by content type and add any of the great Canvas features such as assignments, quizzes, discussions, etc., all in the order you want students to complete them.

What are Modules?

2

Add Requirements

You can require students to complete all items in a module or choose several items to fulfill a requirement. Once all requirements are met, the module will be marked as complete and the students can move to the next module in the course.

How to Add Requirements

3

Add Prerequisites

If you would rather students work through all modules sequentially, you can add prerequisites for modules after adding requirements in each module.

You must have at least two modules to add a prerequisite. Once a student completes all of the requirements in a previous module, the next module will unlock. Great way to keep students from skipping ahead.

How to Add Prerequisites